Ashburnham on the BBC

We were lucky enough to have the BBC Worldservice come to school to hear about our experience of the Shanghai approach to maths teaching. The programme is very interesting, and offers a balanced analysis of the process. You can hear Mr McMullen and Mr East on the broadcast here:

Children being picked up

Parents and carers, please can you make sure that you notify the office if your child is being collected by anyone other than the usual person. This includes if they are going straight on to a party. Thank you.

Bike Market: 9th February

We are delighted to announce that Peddle my Wheels will be coming to Ashburnham on February 9th. Here's the plan: bring in your old/small/broken bikes and the team will fix them up ready to be sold in the playground at the end of the day, so that you keep any money made! There will be a large range of bikes available to purchase cheaply. www.peddlemywheels.com The bike smoothie making project will also be happening in school on the same day.

Educational news- Girls feel 'less talented' by age six

Girls start to see themselves as less innately talented than boys do when they are only six years old, a group of US researchers has said: <http://www.bbc.co.uk/news/health-38717926>

Art at Ash- have a look at this week's fantastic artwork!

Y4 drew Keith Haring figures using classmates as models in a Life Drawing lesson.

Y6 have been studying their reflections to create sketched self portraits.

Y5 drew from fresh flowers to create botanical drawings.

Y1 created self-portraits in the style of Andy Warhol
